December is always a time for celebration and reflection. 2010 has been a rewarding year for us at The Rockafellow Law Firm. Every so often, an opportunity presents itself when we can make a real difference in someone's life. We were blessed to have that happen twice in 2010.

In one case we were able to bring closure to parents who lost their beloved son at the hands of a drunk driver. The driver is serving a stiff prison sentence and the bar that over-served him paid a substantial sum that will guarantee that the same mistake won't be repeated.

In the second case, a child was harmed due to a medical error. Again, we were able to provide this child with a life care plan that will make sure he gets the very best medical attention, and a lifetime income will be provided to make sure he lives a decent life.

We are blessed to have a stable and cohesive staff at Rockafellow Law Firm. Leighton celebrated his 37th year practicing law. Arlene has been with him for 25 of those years. Jenny has been on staff for 10 years. She came to us right out of the paralegal program at Pima College and has never worked anywhere else. Carl and Cheryl are approaching their 4th anniversary and plan to stay as long as Leighton continues to practice. Speaking of continuing, Leighton has no plans to retire. As long as there are people who need us, we will be here to serve their needs.

Leighton published his third legal suspense novel in 2010. "Final Option" has been a huge success. All three titles ("Diminished Capacity;" "Immaculate Deception;" and "Final Option") are available on Amazon.com in paper and Kindle version. Just type in "Leighton Rockafellow" in the subject box and all three titles are displayed. "Diminished Capacity" and "Final Option" have five star ratings and "Immaculate Deception" earned a 4.5 star rating. Books make excellent Christmas gifts. We have all three titles available at the office and Leighton will personally sign any copy purchased here or brought in if purchased elsewhere. Consider giving a friend one of Leighton's books for Christmas this year.

All of us look forward to 2011. Thank you one and all for continuing to let us serve your needs. We appreciate your business and your continued referrals. May God Bless each and every one of you this Christmas season!

Sincerely,

Leighton Rockafellow and staff.
